

Frida Polli, PhD, MBA

Executive Director of the McSilver Institute for Poverty Policy and Research at New York University (NYU)

EXPERTISE

Frida Polli is an award-winning Harvard and MIT neuroscientist turned CEO. She is a thought leader in the ethical AI and technology spaces, and has been featured in/on CNN, BBC, CNBC, Bloomberg, the Wall Street Journal, the Financial Times, the New York Times, the Economist Fortune, Forbes, Inc, among others. She regularly speaks at the WEF's Annual Meeting in Davos, CogX, MAKERS, Collision Conference, Dreamforce, TechCrunch Disrupt, WebSummit, SXSW, The New York Times' New Summit, MIT EmTech Digital, etc.

CURRENT WORK

Her publications include two dozen scientific articles in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, Brain, and Journal of Neuroscience (among others) and popular press articles in HBR and FastCompany. She has won the MIT 100K Entrepreneurship Competition, and Harvard Business School Life Science Award as well as Inc's Female Founders 100, Entrepreneur's 100 Powerful Women, Fortune's Most Powerful Women NextGen, HRE's Top 100 HR Tech Influencers .